THE CROWN

"Our Mutual Girl," the fifth reel of this delightful series, is the feature at the Crown.

The incident of the widest interest, probably in the fifth chapter of the Mutual Girl series, is her meeting with Mr. Andrew Carnegie. As Margaret and her aunt are passing down Fifth avenue in their car, they see Mr. Carnegie in his gardens. A mutual friend who is driving with them, stops the automobile and introduces the ladies to the world's greatest iron master. They drive on to H. Jaekel & Sons' fur house, where they make an elaborate selection of costly furs. On the way home, Margaret sees John Storm, the country boy—and before her aunt realizes what is happening, she has stopped the car and rushed into his arms, much to the amusement of the public. Scandalized, the aunt hurries Margaret home and scolds her. That afternoon, riding with her riding master in the park, the incident of that scene still rankles—and when the riding master's stirrup loosens and he is obliged to dismount to fix it, she takes the opportunity to run away. Lost in the woods of Central Park, Margaret is rescued by Storm, who takes her home. Near the house, they are overtaken by the aunt and the count, who dismiss Storm with scant ceremony and hurry Margaret indoors. She is sent to her room without any supper, for her waywardness—and thoroughly rebellious, she packs her clothes and prepares to run away.

The management of the Crown has prepared a special treat for music lovers, which will be given this evening. The four-piece orchestra which has been playing at the Star theater, throughout, will play a program. The orchestra is made up as follows: Miss May Carroll, pianist; Eldred Nelson, violinist; Joseph Smith, flute; August Toranzo, clarinet. The program follows:

"High Society"—Heed.
Selection from "Rigoletto"—Verdi.
"Dance of the Hours"—Piaf.
"Summer Evening Waltz"—Wald.
Selection from "Amorita"—Czibulka.
"Egyptian Ballet"—Laurin.
Selection from "Fortino Teller"—Vidor Herbert.

THE ROYAL

"The Girl from Prosperity" is the special feature at the Royal. It is in two parts.

Jim is engaged to Elizabeth Emery. While out sleighing, Jim sees the New York train going by, and tells the girl he should like to be going there. The next evening, in a "little game," Jim bids the highest hand in poker and "wins up." He tells Elizabeth he is going to visit the big city. She is reluctant at first, but finally gives in. In New York, Jim tries to get fresh with Bessie Williams, a manicurist, but is promptly squelched. Becoming lonely and homesick, he confides his troubles to Bessie, showing her a picture of the girl from the town of Prosperity. She tells him to like the boy. He gets in with a crowd and speculates in a buck-rump where he makes a fortune.

Carried away by his success, despite Bessie's advice to quit, he plunges and loses all. Down and out and spurned by his "friends," he is on the verge of suicide when he meets Bessie, who persuades him to go back to Prosperity, but he is too proud, so she writes to Elizabeth and tells her Jim is ill. This brings Elizabeth and her married sister to New York. Bessie tells them "Jimmy is a good boy, but an awful fool." Elizabeth is angry at the girl at first, then indignant at Jim as she learns of his adventures and downfall. But Bessie induces her to see him before judging too harshly. Bessie takes Jim to the hotel and pushes him into the room where Elizabeth awaits. Realizing from his care-worn face he has learned his lesson, she forgets about the scolding she was to give him, and seeks her forgiveness with a kiss. Bessie, behind the curtain, watches the reconciliation she has brought about and goes back to her work light-hearted.

THE PEOPLE'S

"The Opal Ring," an imp two-reel drama, will be the attraction at the People's Saturday.

There is a motive or reason for everything that happens—a plausible

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young—is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a dull look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver. Dr. Edwards' well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio. All druggists.—Advertisement.

explanation for every situation. And yet, there is the opal ring around which all the trouble centers. It belongs to the kindly old aunt. Her grand-niece desired it, but the aunt refused it, vaguely believing in the old superstition that surrounded it.

Perhaps it was a whim that caused the girl to make the securing of the opal ring a test for her affection. Or perhaps she wished to prove conclusively the falsity of the superstition. Certainly, she little dreamed of the tragic results that were to follow when she told the two young men, both in love with her, that the one who secured it from the old aunt could claim her. The play starts out almost as a comedy. Then comes the first shaft, in the shape of a letter from the aunt, which starts the ball of suspense rolling.

The letter states that the opal ring was almost stolen. "I recognized the would-be robber, a worthless tenant of mine, and frightened him away," says the aunt. The two suitors, Fred and Will, decide to act at once before anything happens to the ring. Afterward they both visit the aunt and both are refused. Later, she writes a note to Fred, telling him to return that evening, that she will give him the ring. This note is seen by Will, and he decides that there is only one way to get the ring.

That night Fred secures the ring. After his departure when the lights have been switched off, a real robber, his identity hidden in the darkness, enters and secures the jewel case. The aunt tries to interfere—there is a struggle and the aunt is killed. Before dying she whispers to the servant that "he came back again."

Fred takes the ring to Alice. There, soon afterward, he is arrested as the thief. Will has an alibi in the fact that he was confined in his house at the time. Alice is overcome when told that the aunt is dead and imagines Fred guilty.

Alice's father suspects Will, in spite of his alibi, and hires a detective. Then Alice enters the case and tries to straighten out the mystery. She recalls the words of her aunt, "He came back again." Fred is tried and found guilty on circumstantial evidence, but through a clever bit of work by the girl the real thief is run down—it was the tenant, hired to do the work by Will. At the end Fred and Alice throw the ring into the flames.

THE LYRIC

"The Children of the Fend," in two parts, is the feature booked by the Lyric for Saturday.

Jabez Morton goes to a nearby field to drive some cows to an upper pasture. He pulls down part of Carson Belfield's pasture fence so as to drive the cows through. Belfield, who is sitting on a stump smoking his pipe watching his two children, Walton and Hulda, rises angrily and, rifle in hand, goes toward Jabez. Belfield orders Jabez to stop pulling down the fence and when he refuses, shoots him. James Morton, with his wife, Eliza, and their two young boys, Boone and William, run to the pasture. They vow to revenge Jabez. Fifteen years later, William and Boone while walking in the mountains, see Walton and Hulda. William fires at them, but misses his aim. Boone refuses to shoot, saying: "I do not make war on women." A few days later, Boone is sitting alone in the mountains and is surprised by Hulda. He lowers his rifle and laughs. Angered by his manner, Hulda fires at him, hitting him in the knee. Ashamed of her act, she kneels beside him and bandages his wound. When she leaves, her cheeks are flushed and there is a soft light in her eyes. Boone looks toward her with deep interest.

That night Hulda takes food to Boone. He seizes her hand and presses it to his lips. When she comes back the next day she is followed by her brother, Walton, who witnesses an affectionate greeting. He confronts Hulda as she is leaving and reviles her for her conduct. When he starts to shoot Boone she throws herself in the way and shrieks. Morris, a preacher, and William Morton hasten near. William forces Walton to surrender himself, and leads him off. The preacher goes with Hulda to Boone and joins the young couple in marriage. When he tells of this to the Mortons, William and his father, enraged, rush to find the couple. William fires at them, but misses. Walton and William engage in a desperate fight. Both fall down the mountainside and are killed. The two old fathers are overcome with grief when they see the tragedy and, in sight of Hulda, Boone and the preacher, they clasp hands over their dead sons, and agree to end their long warfare.

THE CALUMET

"A Maze of Mystery," a George Kleine attraction in four parts, will be the special attraction at the Calumet theater next Tuesday evening.

Mario, a young man connected with the diplomatic service of his country, becomes infatuated with Sonia, who poses as a Russian princess, but the marriage of the two is mysteriously opposed by the young man's wealthy father. The older man's expression of disapproval of the princess is the last word his son hears from his lips, for the next morning the butler finds him lying dead in bed.

James Eagle, a famous detective, is put upon the case and soon learns of Mario's infatuation for the fascinating Russian. He also learns that the woman is not a princess at all, but merely an adventuress, seeking to make her fortune as best she can. When he finds that the elder Mario has been apprehended by means of a gas tube let through the floor of the apartment above, and that Sonia's "cousin" has recently occupied the room, he begins operations.

Eagle calls on Sonia and a battle of wits ensues. She pretends to believe in the guilt of her cousin and offers to guide the detective to his hiding place. He follows her directions, but substitutes a dummy for himself in the rear seat of his automobile. When the dum-

ASSURES FRIENDS OF SAFETY.

S. F. Fuller Suffers No Inconvenience in Mexico City.

Friends of S. F. Fuller, a former copper country resident, who now is located in Mexico City, have been assured of his safety through the publication of an official list of the names of Americans by the United States consul at Mexico City. This relieves relatives of Mr. Fuller who were apprehensive about his safety.

Mr. Fuller is engaged as the manager of a branch of the Goodyear Rubber company. While a few hostile demonstrations against American occurred in the capital of the turbulent republic, no subjects of the United States were harmed, according to advice received here.

my is suddenly riddled with bullets, his suspicions are confirmed.

Finally the detective succeeds in capturing the guilty man after an exciting chase through the labyrinthine maze of dark passages in an old castle. Suddenly the prisoner tries to hurl the detective through an open door. Suspecting an unseen danger, the detective grapples with his prisoner and succeeds in pushing him through the door. He is horrified to see the man drop suddenly into a lifeless heap. A search reveals the connection of a brass plate to the floor with a powerful battery. The criminal, seeking to electrocute his captor, has been caught in his own trap.

His net of evidence complete, the detective has no trouble in bringing the Russian adventures to justice, clearing up the mystery of the elder Mario's sudden death and freeing the son from the toils of an unfortunate entanglement.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil, Remove Them With The Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.—Advertisement.

INTEREST IN RIDING CLUB.

Organization Has Prospect of Becoming Popular Here.

The organization of a riding club, the headquarters of which will be in the driving park, has been perfected and a membership of thirty already has been enrolled. The club has a bright future in prospect as interest in the sport is constantly increasing. At a recent meeting, George L. Foley was named president and the vice presidents are Dr. J. B. Quick, Dr. W. T. King, Charles McIntyre, S. R. Smith and J. O. Porter. F. C. Messner is the secretary and L. C. Gunnerus is treasurer.

It is proposed to levy a membership fee of $5 and a monthly assessment, the proceeds of which will be utilized for park rental and other expense of the club. A tentative code of by-laws has been prepared and these likely will be adopted at an early meeting. Among other regulations, it is proposed to adopt a uniform style of dress.

WILL SERVE TURKEY SUPPER.

A shipment of turkeys has arrived for the turkey supper to be served in the parlors of the M. E. church Saturday evening from 6 to 9 o'clock. Adequate provision has been made for a large crowd and fifteen young ladies will wait on the tables. The high school orchestra will render several numbers and interesting toasts will appear on the program.

Officers of the Sunday school declare this will be the best turkey feast of the season. An admission fee of thirty-five cents will be charged.

LAURIUM BREVITIES.

A force of workmen today began excavating on Hecla street for the installation of a new gas main.

Mrs. Harry Lohb will leave tonight for Superior, Wis., to visit her daughter, Mrs. Jerry Noonan. Before returning, Mrs. Lohb will visit her son, Harry, who is playing ball in Virginia, Minn.

Rev. A. B. Sutcliffe will preach at the Hancock M. E. church this evening in connection with revival services which have been in progress for the past week.
